Thomas Edison was born on February 11, 1847. He was one of seven children. When he was a child, he had a lot of illnesses. He also had hearing problems. His mother spent a lot of time worrying about him. Instead of going to school, his mother taught him at home. When he was not doing schoolwork, he liked to figure out how things worked.

Thomas Edison was a very hard worker. When he was 12, he started selling books and newspapers. When he was not busy selling items, he read the books and magazines he is selling. This helped him become smarter. He even published his own newspaper when he was a teenager. He used his profits to build a small science lab.

Once, while working in his lab with his assistant, Thomas Edison saw a child wandering onto the railroad tracks looking for his father. He saved him and, as a reward, was offered a job working for a telegraph company. The job gave Thomas Edison the chance to start travelling around the country. As he travelled, he learned more about the way things worked and got new ideas. Those ideas helped him to create new things and he became known as one of the greatest inventors of all time.
