VI- Reading Comprehension: (110 Marks)

110

Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions that follow:

At the supermarket these days, there is often a section that sells just organic products. There are also many new stores opening up that specialise just in organic fruits and vegetables. Organic food is becoming more and more popular these days as people have become aware of its benefits.

People need to understand why something is labelled 'organic' in order to make the best choices when buying food for themselves and their families. Organic food companies across the world agree on what qualifies a product as organic: such products must be grown without chemical fertilizers or pesticides that are usually used to stop insects from damaging crops. Also, farm animals, such as cows and chickens, must not be injected with unnatural growth hormones or antibiotics. These standards result in healthier and tastier food. Without poisonous pesticides and chemical fertilizers, crop plants produce more antioxidants and other beneficial nutrients. Fertilizer pollution is a major environmental problem that affects places far away from farms. Their mass production causes global warming. On the other hand, organic farming tends to have limited environmental effects as it encourages the responsible use of energy and natural resources. The farmers, their families and their communities also benefit from a cleaner and safer environment.

How to tell if a product is organic? At the supermarket, in order to distinguish organically produced foods from traditionally produced ones, consumers must look at package labels and signs. Organic foods must have special labels that guarantee they are grown organically. An official seal also tells you that a product is at least 95 percent organic.

From a health perspective, organic food consumption may reduce the risk of allergy, overweight and obesity. It may also reduce the chances of developing heart diseases. Furthermore, organic foods have higher vitamin and mineral contents that help to strengthen the human immune system. Consequently, organic foods are safer, healthier and poison-free.

Growing organic food is often difficult and requires more land, time and efforts. As a result, organically grown food is more expensive to buy. Many people, however, are willing to pay that extra cost to get the benefit of natural and environmentally friendly foods.

A) From a, b, c and d, choose the correct answer: (5x10= 50 Marks)

28. The main idea of the 1st paragraph is:

- a. Organic food is healthier than regular food.

- d. differentiate

30. The underlined word "it" in the 2nd paragraph refers to:

- a. organic farming
- b. global warming
- c. mass production
- d. fertilizer pollution

31. According to the passage, organic food:

- a. is not available at stores.
- b. has poisonous pesticides.
- c. causes fertilizer pollution.
- d. costs more than regular food.

32. The purpose of the writer is to:

- a. explain where to grow organic food.
- b. list the steps of sealing and selling organic food.
- c. give a general overview of organic food and its benefits.
- d. show the negative effects of organic food on the environment.

B) With reference to the passage, answer the following questions: (4x15=60 Marks)

33. According to organic food companies, what qualifies a food product as organic?

It must be grown without chemical fertilizers or pesticides. / Farm animals, such as cows and chickens, must not be injected with unnatural growth hormones or antibiotics.

34. Why is organic farming good for the environment?

Organic farming tends to have limited environmental effects. / It encourages the responsible use of energy and natural resources.

35. How can a consumer identify organic foods at the supermarket?

Consumers must look at package labels and signs. / Organic foods must have special labels that guarantee they are grown organically. / An official seal also tells that a product is at least 95 percent organic.

36. How is organic food beneficial for people?

It may reduce the risk of allergy, overweight and obesity. / It may also reduce the chances of developing heart diseases. / Organic foods have higher vitamin and mineral contents that help to strengthen the human immune system. / Organic foods are safer, healthier and poison-free.

VII - Summary Making (60 Marks)

Read the following passage, then do as required:

Decision making is the process of making choices. A step-by-step process can assist you in making more careful decisions. The first step in the process is to identify the problem you need to solve or the question you need to answer. Then, it is time to gather necessary information that is directly related to the problem. This will help you better understand what needs to be done to solve this problem. The next step is to make a choice and confidently make your decision. Finally, evaluate how effective the solution was and decide whether it needs to be revised. Following these steps will help you become a better decision maker.

In a paragraph of FOUR sentences ONLY, summarise and paraphrase the previous passage in answer to the following question: (60 Marks)

What are the steps to effective decision making?

The answer must include the following FOUR ideas:

- Identifying the problem/ question.
- Gathering information.
- Making a choice and a decision.
- Evaluating the effectiveness of the solution.
