YouTube is a website with all sorts of videos created by millions of different people. Anyone can upload a video to YouTube. People create and share video content about many topics including animals, music, and famous people! But who created YouTube?

YouTube was founded by three people: Steve, Chad, and Jawed. Steve was born in Taiwan in 1978. He moved to the United States and studied computer science at the University of Illinois. After finishing studying, Steve worked at a company called PayPal. Chad was born in the United States in 1977. He went to college in the state of Pennsylvania, where he studied Arts. His first job was at PayPal also. Lastly, Jawed was born in Germany in 1979. He studied computer science at the University of Illinois in the United States too. Soon later, he went on to work at PayPal.

Steve, Chad, and Jawed met while working at PayPal. They had a dream of starting their own company. When they first began developing YouTube, the three men worked in a garage. They uploaded the first video on April 23, 2005. Once YouTube started, it grew fast! Now, it is one of the most famous websites on the internet. Although Steve, Chad, and Jawed are no longer working together, they are still known as the inventors of YouTube. Can you imagine what the internet might be like without the invention of YouTube?
